

The Metro Bureau Presents

The Bill of Rights in The Schoolhouse:

Free Speech, Search and Seizure, Due
Process - What does it all mean?

Featuring

Robert Schindler
of Miller Johnson, PLC

How are the rights of an individual balanced against the authority of a school district? What are the limits of free speech in a school district? What are limits on search and seizure? What does Due Process mean for students and staff? Does it matter if the event takes place off school grounds?

These questions and more will be answered in this overview of applying the Bill of Rights in education.

PARTICIPANTS WILL: _____

- Hear recent case law related to free speech.
- Hear do's and don'ts on search and seizure in schools by school officials and contracted security personnel.
- Hear lessons in protecting the due process rights of students and staff during investigations.
- Hear other examples of the Bill of Rights being applied each day in education.
- Get ideas for student and staff handbooks related to these topics.

About the Presenter

MILLER JOHNSON
Attorneys

Robert Schindler is a Member at Miller Johnson in the Education practice. Bob focuses his legal practice on the areas of labor and employment law, general school law, and civil litigation and appeals.

Robert Schindler is a graduate of Eastern Michigan University (B.S., cum laude) and Michigan State University College of Law (J.D., magna cum laude). He has successfully represented public school clients in both state and federal courts, as well as before administrative agencies (including the State Tenure Commission, the Michigan Employment Relations Commission and the Michigan Compensation Appellate Commission), in labor arbitrations, and at the collective bargaining table.

Bob has become known throughout the state not just as a school law attorney, but as a speaker, author, and teacher as well. In this regard, he speaks regularly on education law and labor and employment topics to school districts and professional organizations, including the Metropolitan Detroit Bureau of School Studies, the Michigan Negotiators Association, the Michigan Association of School Personnel Administrators, and others. He has also published several articles in the member newsletter for the Michigan Association of School Personnel Administrators and helps produce regular newsletters for the Michigan Negotiators Association and the Metro Bureau.

In addition, Bob is an adjunct professor at Oakland University. In this role he teaches Education Law to teachers and administrators seeking their Ed.S. degree through OU's Department of Educational Leadership. He is also a member of the Michigan Council of School Attorneys and has served on their Board of Directors.

Education has long been a passion of Bob's as he began his professional career as a secondary-level Social Studies teacher and coach. He is also an avid skier, cyclist, and fan of Detroit and Michigan State sports.
